Please know that this information is used administratively to move related proposals through workflow efficiently. This MFA Painting concentration proposal (key 921) is related to the MFA in Art & design (key 31), MFA Photography concentration proposal (key 922), MFA Printmaking concentration (key 923), MFA Sculpture concentration (key 924), and the MFA Art & Design Studio Art concentration proposal (key 1244).

Program Justification

Provide a brief description of what changes are being made to the program.

This proposal seeks to eliminate the Painting concentration of the MFA in Art & Design in the School of Art & Design

Why are these changes necessary?

The plan to deactivate the Painting concentration is a necessary step in aligning the rubric of our MFA in Art & Design with curriculum and objectives. While the MFA program currently contains four concentrations in the field of Studio Art (Painting, Photography, Printmaking, Sculpture), their curriculum and learning outcomes are identical. Our MFA Program has long served students seeking graduate-level education in the visual arts, rather than those seeking immersion in a program defined by a single, medium-specific curriculum. Students work with faculty who specialize in all mediums. Following the eliminations of MFA concentrations in Crafts and Metals, the ongoing NASAD reaccreditation process found that there was not discipline-specific focus or time on task to support the concentrations/specialization in the various areas of focus. That students are admitted into the concentration in Painting has long been a designation in name only. A newly proposed concentration of Studio Art (key 1244) more accurately reflects our curriculum and learning outcomes that serve a range of mediums and methods in the visual arts as a field. This newly proposed concentration will replace the 4 current concentrations in Painting, Printmaking, Photography, and Sculpture.

The MFA in Art & Design, concentrations in Industrial Design and Design for Responsible Innovation remain unchanged and unimpacted.
