1. HOW REVISION(S) INDICATED APPEAR CURRENTLY:

Course Title: Basic Leadership
 Course Description: Fundamentals of military and USGS map reading including methods such as intersection and resection; includes land navigation and orienteering techniques and their application. Includes field trip.
 Prerequisite: Only available to students who have less than 60 credit hours.

2. HOW REVISION(S) INDICATED WOULD APPEAR AFTER CHANGE:

Course Title: Introduction to the Profession of Arms
 MSL 102 introduces you to the professional challenges and competencies that are needed for effective execution of the profession of arms and Army communication. Through this course, you will learn how Army ethics and values shape the U.S. Army and the specific ways that these factors are inculcated into Army culture. You will gain a better understanding of the Laws of Land Warfare and the Principles of War and how they affect an Army Leader's decision making process. You will understand the fundamentals of military and USGS map reading including methods such as intersection and resection, terrain association, and orienteering.

3. JUSTIFY REVISION OR REQUEST:

Our headquarters, U.S. Army Cadet Command, has changed the content of this course since our last revision. We felt that a more updated portrayal of the course content was in order, due to changes, so that students would be able to determine whether this course might fit in with their academic goals.

Proposed By: Eric W. Stetson Date: February 12, 2015

*Note: Additional approvals are required. An authorized official of each non-controlling, cross-listing department must endorse the revisions(s). In addition, if the cross-listing involves a different college, a dean of that college must also approve. (Letter, e-mail, or note written below the Approvals block are all acceptable methods of approval endorsement.)
