SP.18.06 Revision to the Bylaws, Part D.14 – Committee on Information Technology

BACKGROUND

The Senate Committee on Information Technology (IT) discusses a variety of issues concerning information technology at the University including those around research computing, administrative computing, and instructional computing. There has been discussion by IT that it would be beneficial to have a representative from the Center for Innovation in Teaching & Learning (CITL) at the committee meetings for input, guidance, or comment. Of note, the executive officers of both Technology Services and Administrative Information Technology Services (AITS) already have ex officio roles on the committee. With CITL's central campus service role in online education as well as technology-enhanced instruction, there is a parallel to be drawn that would indicate their inclusion as well. For these reasons, IT believes it would be appropriate for the CITL Director to join the committee in a non-voting ex officio capacity.
