Proposal to the Senate Educational Policy Committee

PROPOSAL TITLE: Revise and Rename Major in the Sciences and Letters
Curriculum: BALAS in Russian Language and Literature, in the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

SPONSOR: Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures, David L. Cooper, Associate Professor, Director of Undergraduate Studies, 244-4666; dlcoop@illinois.edu

COLLEGE CONTACT: Karen Carney, Associate Dean, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, kmcarney@illinois.edu

BRIEF DESCRIPTION: Renames the major from BALAS in Russian Language and Literature to BALAS in Slavic Studies. Introduces five concentrations, allowing students to focus in Russian, Polish, South Slavic, Ukrainian or Czech studies. Reduces the total number of hours required for the major from 48 to 30 hours by eliminating the supporting coursework requirement and expanding options for a capstone experience.

JUSTIFICATION:

Illinois has a depth in Russian language, literature, and culture across multiple disciplines that very few U.S. institutions of higher learning can match. Russian is our central departmental strength in terms of faculty research, graduate studies, undergraduate course offerings, and enrollments—a Russian major can focus exclusively on that individual language and culture and still not take advantage of our whole range of offerings. Nevertheless, in the post-Cold War and post-USSR world, rendering the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures less Russo-centric is long overdue, especially given our considerable faculty strengths in non-Russian literatures and cultures.

With a renamed major in Slavic Studies, we will mesh better with the area studies offerings of the Russian, East European, and Eurasian Center (REEEC) and the new and growing program of study of the European Union Center, which has supported our offerings in Czech, Polish, and Bosnian/Croat/Serbian. Unlike the major in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (REEES) which has a multidisciplinary area studies and current affairs focus, the major in Slavic Studies emphasizes the study of language, literature, and culture in their historical context. We view this redesigned major with its multiple concentrations as a very pragmatic initiative aimed at meeting the programmatic demands of the Illinois campus's large heritage populations from the Chicago area. Students who might have taken Polish or Ukrainian for family heritage reasons, but previously saw no programmatic benefit to doing so, now will be able to work toward a major. For very understandable historical reasons—many of our potential students now live in the U.S. because at one time or another their families sought to escape Russian domination of their homelands—housing these new concentrations within a Russian major would not be appropriate, which is why renaming our existing major as a Slavic Studies major makes the most sense.

The other proposed changes to our major are designed to reduce some structural obstacles that have prevented students from pursuing the major in the past, and to bring our requirements into line with those of similar language, literature, and culture majors at this institution and at peer institutions as well. Specifically, we want to:

- 1) Reduce the number of hours required for the major from 48 to 30, in keeping with the College’s recommended guidelines of requiring 30-40 hours in the major;
- 2) Remove the supporting coursework requirement to leave additional space in the student’s program for electives;
- 3) Reduce the language requirement in the major from a minimum of 12 hours beyond the second year to a minimum of 6 hours beyond the second year. (In other words, for a student starting from the beginning level of the language, 6 semesters of the language are required for the major, but only the final 2 count toward the major hours.)

A large percentage of our majors in recent years have been double-majors (Russian and Global Studies, Russian and Rhetoric, Russian and Political Science). Current requirements allow for the elimination of the supporting coursework requirement for students completing double majors or minors. The revised major encourages more students to choose Russian with another major by further streamlining the requirements and by eliminating the supporting coursework requirements for all majors. (Note that current LAS guidelines recommend eliminating supporting coursework requirements; see: <http://www.las.illinois.edu/faculty/curricula/majors/> )

Each concentration will follow the same basic structure (listed below) but with different course selections.

Hours	Core Requirements
6	Language: A minimum of 6 hours beyond the second year of a Slavic language, chosen from the following:            RUSS 301,302 – Third-Year Russian I, II            CZCH 484 - Readings in Czech (may be repeated)            POL 301, 302 - Third-Year Polish I, II            SCR 301, 302 - Third-Year Serbian/Croatian I, II            UKR 301, 302 - Third-Year Ukrainian I, II
24	Literature and culture: A minimum of 24 hours is required in the following 3 areas:

	6 hours of introductory culture (as specified within each concentration), 6 hours of literature survey, and 12 hours of upper-level (300- and 400-level) literature and culture courses
0-3	Capstone experience: All majors are required to complete a capstone course, project, or experience chosen from among the following: (1) RUSS 493 Honors Senior Thesis (2 hrs), or (2) a 300- or 400-level course in the Slavic Department in which a research project is undertaken; or (3) Study abroad in the region. Majors should consult with the Undergraduate Advisor to plan their capstone experience.

BUDGETARY AND STAFF IMPLICATIONS:

- a. Additional staff and dollars needed. The proposed revisions do not require additional staff or funding. All of the required courses are currently taught on a regular basis by current faculty.
- b. Internal reallocations (e.g., change in class size, teaching loads, student-faculty ratio, etc.). If, as we hope, the proposed changes help us to increase our current numbers of majors, it will also help us to more fully enroll the courses we are currently offering. There is room to accommodate a significant increase in numbers of majors within the course enrollment limits of courses as we are currently offering them. Faculty teaching loads would not need to be increased.
- c. Effect on course enrollment in other units and explanations of discussions with representatives of those departments. All of the required major courses are in our department.
- d. Impact on the University Library. Current resources and acquisitions practices will more than satisfy all needs for the revised curriculum; there should be no impact on the Library.
- e. Impact on computer use, laboratory use, equipment, etc. There would be no need for additional classroom space.

DESIRED EFFECTIVE DATE: Fall 2013

STATEMENT FOR PROGRAMS OF STUDY CATALOG:

Slavic Studies

Department of Slavic Languages and Literature

Slavic Studies

The major in Slavic Studies enables students to specialize in one of five concentrations: Russian Language, Literature, and Culture; Polish Studies; South Slavic Studies; Ukrainian Studies; and Czech Studies. Unlike the major in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies, which has a multidisciplinary area studies and current affairs focus, the major in Slavic Studies emphasizes the study of language, literature, and culture in their historical context. Students develop intensive cultural literacy and communication skills through humanities-oriented training, and many go on to careers in writing and editing, media, or work with international cultural foundations and organizations. The major is an excellent preparation for law school, business school, or other graduate study, as well as careers in the N.G.O. world, teaching, or research.

Major in Sciences and Letters Curriculum

E-mail: slavic@illinois.edu

Degree title: Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Arts and Sciences

Minimum required major courses equate to 30 hours including 6 hours in advanced language and 24 hours in literature and culture.

General education: The LAS General Education requirements are set up so students automatically complete the Campus General Education requirements.

Minimum hours required for graduation: 120 hours

Departmental distinction: Graduation with distinction may be earned by completion of one of the following two options:

- GPA in departmental courses of 3.75; or
- GPA in departmental courses of 3.50, plus successful completion of academic study trip to the region, documented by graded transcript. See a departmental adviser to work out details, preferably two semesters before graduation.

Students must select one concentration in consultation with an academic advisor. Students in all concentrations must complete a) 6 hours of language beyond the second year, and b) 24 hours of literature and culture courses.
